

ALARM TECHNICIAN COURSE – MEMBERS

Whether you're a new Alarm Technician, or an industry veteran, by taking the Canadian Security Association (CANASA) Alarm Technician Course (ATC) at Centennial College, you'll get everything you need to compete in today's marketplace.

Technicians who have learned from on-the-job training can stay up to date on trends and technologies, while new technicians will benefit from gaining the comprehensive knowledge they need to get the job done right. ATC covers a wide range of topics that are important to today's alarm technician industry, including new technologies like networking and wireless, and extensive false alarm prevention. Designed by top security experts, this course promotes best practices and the highest possible standards in the industry. In this course, you will:

- Gain the skills, knowledge, tools, and confidence required to rise above the competition
- Learn to deliver outstanding service to customers and clients
- Be trained to deliver effective solutions for preventing false alarms and dispatches
